1. Introduction

When you visit or interact with our sites or services, we or our authorized service providers may use cookies, web beacons, and other similar technologies for storing information to help provide you with a better, faster, and safer experience and for advertising purposes.

This policy is designed to help you understand more about these technologies and our use of them on our sites and in our services. Below is a summary of a few key things you should know about our use of such technologies.

Where possible, security measures are set in place to prevent unauthorized access to our cookies and similar technologies. A unique identifier ensures that only we and/or our authorized service providers have access to cookie data.

2. About the Cookies

Cookies are small files which are stored on a user's computer. They are designed to a hold a modest amount of data specific to a particular visitor and website and can be accessed either by the web server or the client computer. This allows the server to deliver a page tailored to a particular user.

Cookies are a convenient way to carry information from one session on a website to another, or between sessions on related websites, without having to burden a server machine with massive amounts of data storage.

Cookies may be either "persistent" cookies or "session" cookies: a persistent cookie will be stored by a web browser and will remain valid until its set expiry date, unless deleted by the user before the expiry date; a session cookie, on the other hand, will expire at the end of the user session, when the web browser is closed. Cookies do not typically contain any information that personally identifies a user, but personal information that we store about you may be linked to the information stored in and obtained from cookies.

Further to the above, there are the first party cookies which are the cookies set by the website you are visiting. Only that website can read them. In addition, a website might potentially use external services, which also set their own cookies, known as third-party cookies.

3. How we use cookies

Our websites and emails use mainly the first-party cookies. These are cookies set and controlled by the Company and not by a third-party organization. Although there are third party cookies on our websites that are controlled by third parties, more specifically from other organizations. We may obtain personal information about you through your use of website or through the use of cookies on our websites, in particular by recording which pages you look at on our websites.

The types of first-party cookies we use are the following:

- Store visitor preferences
- analytics data (User's behavior)

In some special cases we also use cookies provided by trusted third parties. The following section details which third party cookies you might encounter through this site.

- This site uses Google Analytics which is one of the most widespread and trusted analytics solution on the web for helping us to understand how you use the site and ways that we can improve your experience. These cookies may track things such as how long you spend on the site and the pages that you visit so we can continue to produce engaging content. For more information on Google Analytics cookies, see the official Google Analytics page.
- We also use social media buttons and/or plugins on this site that allow you to connect with your social network in various ways. For these to work the following social media sites including; Facebook, Twitter, Linkedin and Instagram will set cookies through our site which may be used to enhance your profile on their site or contribute to the data they hold for various purposes outlined in their respective privacy policies.

The Company's websites are using the cookies for the following reasons:
